Pantone is all about precision. The universally used system mixes ink to create a consistent and exact color match every time.

This system is known as the Pantone Matching System (PMS) and contains over 1000 shades. Just like when choosing paint shades for your kitchen wall, each color links to a specific swatch sample and number. By standardizing colors in this way, manufacturers in different locations can make sure their colors match even if they can't be compared visually. This results in an exact final match, printer to printer, project to project, with no differentiation from the expected results.

Pantone is brilliantly suited for producing vibrant tones of color like Pantone Blue or Yellow, and those extra special tonal finishing touches like metallic or neon colors. And with an exact match each time, it is perfect for those looking for high-quality, colorful, consistent branding.
