Box Style:

There are several types of rigid boxes, including:

Set-up box: This type of box is made from multiple pieces of cardboard or paperboard that are glued or taped together to create a box shape. Set-up boxes are often used for packaging luxury goods, candles, and other high-value items.

Slipcase: This type of box is made from a single piece of cardboard or paperboard that is folded and glued to create a box shape. It is also called a slipcover, and it is designed to fit over another container, such as a book or a DVD. Slipcases are often used for packaging books, CDs, and other media.

Rigid box with tray: This type of box includes a tray which is inserted inside the box to hold the product in place. This type of box is often used for packaging fragile items, like glassware, ceramics, and other delicate goods.

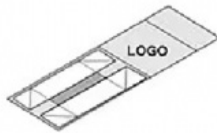

Drawer box: This type of box is a drawer which can be pulled out of the box. This type of box is often used for packaging small items, like jewelry, watches, and other luxury goods.

Magnetic closure box: This box has a magnetic closure on the top which keeps the box closed. This type of box is often used for packaging luxury items, like perfumes, watches, and other high-end products.

FAQ

Q: What are the defining characteristics of rigid boxes?

A: Rigid boxes or setup boxes are made from a thick cardstock and are finished with a paper wrap or fabric liner. These boxes are structurally very strong and significantly thicker when compared to regular folding cartons.

Q: Do custom rigid boxes need to be assembled before they are used?

A: No assembly is required as custom printed rigid or setup boxes are shipped ready to use.

Q: Why should our company switch to branded rigid packaging?

A: Rigid packaging offers an upscale option for packaging luxury products such as jewelry, branded accessories, and electronics. Rigid boxes add a sense of quality and luxury to your brand along with offering excellent protection for your products during the sale process.

Q: How long do rigid boxes last?

A: Rigid boxes are paper-based products and thus are sensitive to storage conditions such as heat, sunlight, temperature, and moisture. Sudden changes in environmental conditions can negatively affect the quality of such paper-based products. All printed products including rigid boxes should be unpacked after delivery for inspection and identification of any manufacturing issues. After inspection, all printed products including rigid packaging should be stored in moisture-free and temperature-controlled conditions.

In addition, unfavorable storage conditions such as moisture, extreme heat, or direct sunlight can cause damage to printed materials including discoloration and fading of printed colors. Packagingblue makes no claims or representations regarding the long-term durability of printed products as the longevity of all printed materials including rigid packaging depends upon environmental and storage conditions that are beyond Packagingblue's direct control.

Q: Can you help me in designing rigid setup boxes for my products?

A: Our design team will be happy to design a unique box to showcase your products. If you would like to provide your own artwork, we can prepare and send an appropriate design template for you to use. If you would like our help in creating your design, please send us your logo and/or other artwork and our design team will set it up as per your requirements.

Q: Do you offer protective product inserts?

A: Yes, we offer a full range of custom inserts that are made to provide a snug fit for your products. Your sales representative can provide more details upon request.
